

Kaddy Revolorio, Foshay Learning Center

Education is a major part of everyone's life, whether it's elementary, middle school, high school, college, graduate school, or even, medical school, everyone has to go through it. Through out my educational life, especially the last four years, I have learned that education is what allows each person to be an individual and have security in the future. The last years I have made sure that I have taken the adequate classes that will ensure me a place in a four-year university, made sure to take rigorous courses to prepare me for higher education, and have been involved on campus. High school has prepared me for the next step, college where I plan to major in psychology. I ultimately plan to become a clinical psychologist, but before I get to that point, I would like to give back to the education system and be a psychology teacher.

High School has taught me many valuable lessons. It has taught me to become more independent, and value education. In high school I had the opportunity to choose some of the classes that I could take, this way I was able to take classes that I thought would challenge me and prepare me for college. I was able to take advanced placement classes, and classes that were not necessary to graduate, but classes that I felt necessary to take in order to give me a feel of what college may be like. With the help of my counselor, I was able to plan out my schedule to get the classes that I felt necessary to take in order to give me a feel of what college may be like. I was also given the opportunity to go beyond and take classes at the community college, this was also given the opportunity to go beyond and take classes at a community college, this was a wonderful experience because I now have a first hand experience at what college is really like. My high school experience has taught me that education is the only way to knowledge, which is why I would like to go to college and higher education in order to reach my goals.

Through my high school life, I have come across great teachers and a counselor that have motivated me to learn more and reach for higher goals. These people have motivated me very much and because of them, I would like to motivate other students to learn more and reach for higher goals just like they motivated me. Seeing teachers who genuinely care for their students has made me want to do the same. It has made me want to have the opportunity to teach students. Not only would I teach students about different psychology topics, but I would also provide for them the same values that my teachers provide for me. I feel that I could give back to the education system and to coming youth by becoming a teacher.

I feel that education is very important to everyone's life. Education is what teaches us what we know. Education gives everyone an opportunity to become who they want to be. Education gives everyone power, it gives us knowledge. These are all intangible things that I would like to give to the coming youth. These are all things that I could only do if I become a teacher.

“I have known Kaddy Revolorio for four years and find her to be very cooperative, friendly and caring. Her leadership abilities and education will allow her to attend any college of her choice. She is a student who shows tremendous amount of initiative and effectively brings closure to all assignments given to her. Kaddy has spent many ours performing service to this community. She is very sensitive to the students to the needs of students in the inner-city. She is aware of the struggles that plague the youth of today. She is very sensitive to the lack of equal education opportunities for these students and young adults. She plans to continue her education and experience challenging life-learning skills to give back to the education system and become a teacher.”
